Chapter 1 by Story Wars

Once there lived a young vain princess, who would always chat about her beauty and talent. Her name was Venassa. She would always sit on the marble garden bench and continuously say things about her beauty in front of her dirty servants. Which made the servants feel hate for their looks. Venassa was beautiful but very vain and careless. Her behaviour made other lives miserable. After the servants had finished their shift they would go home and cry and trash the place because of their hatred of their looks and life.

A young and powerful sorceress saw this and wasn't pleased. So she had an idea of giving Venassa a test to see if she had something else than vain in her heart. So the next day, the powerful sorceress transformed herself to an old lady and went to the castle. When she arrived and asked the beautiful princess Venassa for some bread in exchange for a sapphire blue pendant, Venassa said "No Way! you are not worthy enough of having my fresh bread but I can have the necklace!" So the princess snatched off the necklace and laughed at the old lady.

The sorceress saw nothing but a vain and selfish girl. Her test did its job and it's time for her to to her. The sorceress waved her arm and transformed to her beautiful self again. Venassa's mouth opened randomly with shock.

"you have shown no kindness or love in your life," said the sorceress softly "therefore I punish you by taking away your beauty." The punishment was to drink the water of the Fountain of Youth, so the sorceress took away Venassa's beauty. Venassa's beautiful golden hair turned black and her clothes turned to rags and her castle turned to dust.
